FRENCH RADIO REPORTS PARIS LIBERATED

But Allies Say Bitter Fighting Is in Progress

Fate of Capital Appears in Doubt

By JAMES F. KING

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 25. (P)—The Paris radio announced late tonight that the French capital had been liberated and that the German commander had signed a document ordering his troops to cease fire immediately.

The announcement followed entry of American and French troops into the capital during the day. There was no immediate confirmation here.

The latest word at headquarters was that American and French troops had joined fighting French patriots on the Ile De La Cite in the heart of the capital after bitter fighting with Germans and French collaborationist militiamen.

De Gaulle States Position
Gen. Charles De Gaulle, president of the French Committee of National Liberation, said in a speech broadcast from Paris:

"France will take her place among the great nations which will organize the peace. We will not rest until we march as we must, into enemy territory as conquerors."

The commander of the Paris region for the French forces of the interior, Colonel Rouel, issued this proclamation to his forces, the radio said:

"F.F.I. of the Ile De France (the Paris region) you have unleashed a rising which has liberated Paris. You have improvised your tactics, animated by the strong desire to win, and you have won."

In another broadcast the Paris radio said that the German commander had signed the following document, presented by Brig. Gen. Jacques LeClerc, commander of the French Second armored division and leader of the French force which entered the capital during the day:

Germans Cease Firing
"The German commander gives orders to the forces under his command to cease fire immediately. Arms are stacked. Personnel assemblies without arms at places to be indicated, and will wait for orders there. Arms have to be delivered intact."

It was the second time this week that the French forces of the interior had announced the liberation of the capital from four years of Nazi rule. On Wednesday they announced Paris had been freed from within, but later reported that the Germans had repudiated an armistice agreement and resumed fighting.

Tonight's announcement followed bitter fighting in the heart of the city by French and American armored forces of the United States Third Army which rolled in this morning.

French Attack Germans
The first French column to enter the city reached Luxembourg, near the center of the city, at 10:20 a. m. and engaged in a battle with the Germans, and collaborationist militia.

In the fog of early morning, American infantry—the first of this second American expeditionary force within a generation to enter Paris—battled to Notre Dame, whose ancient bells a few hours before had welcomed the first French patriots to the city.

On all sides the liberating French and Americans were greeted by hungry Parisians, mad with joy, who had fought alone against the German oppressors since they were called to arms last Saturday.

Brig. Gen. Jacques LeClerc, here of the Fighting French in the North African campaign, was in the forefront of the battle, leading the tanks to the rescue of patriots who had been frantically calling for help as the Germans fought back throughout the night.

Ford Plant Crippled: 6,000 Workers Halt Production In Great Highland Park Factory

DETROIT, Aug. 25. (P)—A strike causing idleness for more than 6,000 workers halted production in the Ford Motor Company's Highland Park plant today.

Approximately 2,800 machine operators engaged in production of gears for aircraft engines left their jobs and later a picket line turned back 3,450 afternoon shift workers.

1,750 American Bombers Attack German Targets

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON, Saturday, Aug. 26. (P)—More than 1,750 heavy American bombers blasted targets in Germany and Czechoslovakia yesterday, including vital research and experimental stations for Hitler's flying bombs, rockets and jet-propelled planes.

Other hundreds of planes from tactical forces in France and Italy hammered at the enemy on two fronts.

One armada of more than 1,100 Fortresses and Liberators ranged deep into Germany from Britain, battering ten targets including several concerned with perfecting or making Hitler's new weapons of destruction. Later a force of up to 250 bombers attacked industrial targets in Northern France and Belgium.

From Italy nearly 500 heavies winged over Czechoslovakia for the second successive day, pounding two plane plants and two air fields.

On the first raid the heavies from Britain were escorted by nearly 750 fighters which shot down eleven German planes and destroyed forty more on the ground. No Nazi fighters were able to reach the bomber formations but flak was heavy. Allied losses on the raid were seventeen bombers and seven fighters. There were no losses on the second raid.

American fighters and fighter-bombers pursuing the fleeing Germans beyond the Seine river destroyed forty-one enemy planes in the air, probably destroyed six and damaged twenty-one. Allied losses of these missions were eighteen.

Late in the day RAF heavies with a fighter escort attacked robot bomb launching sites in Northern France and apparently were out over Germany again in the night. The German radio reported after midnight that a bomber formation was over Northwestern Germany and nuisance raiders were over Brandenburg province.

Anthracite Strikers Return to Work

engine jobs. He said officials of the local were attempting to persuade the employees to return to work, but a strike meeting tonight turned down the proposal.

Declaring that "a growing and bitter factional fight" was raging in the local union, the company statement said "local 400 has been a constant source of trouble ever since the contract was signed between Ford and the UAW." It added the international UAW-CIO "is either powerless or chooses not to" straighten out the situation.

Russian Armies Encircle 60,000 German Troops

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, Aug. 26. (P)—Two Russian armies surging to the heart of Romania at better than a mile-an-hour clip reached the Galati Gap, defenses between the Danube river and the Carpathian mountains yesterday in a six-day whirlwind offensive which Moscow announced had cost the enemy 100,000 killed and 105,000 captured.

Twelve German divisions of upwards of 60,000 men also have been surrounded and 13,000 of them captured in the last two days south-west of fallen Chisinau, provincial capital of Bessarabia, a Moscow communique said, and the Second and Third Ukrainian armies under Generals Rodion Y. Malinovsky and Fedor I. Tolbukhin now have linked up for a smash toward Bucharest, within 112 miles of Soviet spearheads.

Romanians Quit War
Thousands of Romanians were abandoning the struggle against the Russians and turning to fight the Germans at the orders of their government, dispatches said. Berlin admitted its troops were retreating.

A total of 550 towns and villages were swept up by the Russians. The capture of Tecuci, 112 miles northeast of Bucharest and ninety-two miles from the bomb-wrecked Ploesti oil wells, put the Russians under Malinovsky at the Galati Gap, a forty-five-mile stretch of defenses prepared along the Putna, Siret and Neamtza rivers above the confluence with the Danube.

This represented a twenty-seven-mile advance from Barlad, captured Thursday.

To the east and northeast General Tolbukhin's forces reached the Prut river on a seventy-mile front between Leuseni and Kagul, the latter only thirty-two miles north of the Danube. Other units under this Russian leader captured Tatar Bunary, reaching to within fourteen miles of the Danube port of Ismail, said the broadcast communique recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Strongpoint Captured

On the Estonian front, an order of the day by Premier-Marshall Joseph Stalin announced that Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's third Baltic army had captured Tartu, university city on the Riga-Tallinn railway 100 miles southeast of Tallinn, Estonian capital. Stalin termed it an important strongpoint in German defenses covering the roads to the central areas of Estonia, and ordered a twenty-salvo victory salute from 224 Moscow guns.

South of Lomza on the Northern Poland front, where Gen. G. F. Zaharov's second White Russian army was driving a wedge between Warsaw and East Prussia, the bulletin announced the capture of forty localities. Other Soviet forces also beat down German counterattacks east and northeast of Praga, suburb of embattled Warsaw.

Million Nazi Casualties

The Moscow statement of Axis losses in six days raised to nearly 1,000,000 the announced number of enemy killed and captured since the Russians began their gigantic summer operations June 23. On the basis of Moscow announcements the total is 986,856, with some Soviet armies yet to turn in their reports.

Malinovsky's second Ukrainian army in its swift drive down the Prut river killed 40,000 of the enemy and took 49,000 German and Romanian prisoners in fighting from Aug. 20 through yesterday, the special announcement said. It destroyed ninety-nine planes, 104 tanks and self-propelled guns, 426 guns of various calibers, 480 mortars, 807 machine-guns and 1,050 trucks.

Rubber Director Dewey Charges Nelson Is Sniper

New Storm Breaks About WPB Chief

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25. (P)—An angry new storm broke about Donald M. Nelson's head tonight shortly after the War Production Board chairman left for China with his agency still seething from the row which led to Charles E. Wilson's resignation as vice chairman.

Rubber Director Bradley M. Dewey accused the WPB head of "typical Washington sniping" in comment on the rubber program. It was Dewey declared, the same sort of "sniping" that led to Wilson's resignation "and made many good Americans unwilling to give services that otherwise would be of value to the country in the conduct of the war."

Refers to Testimony

Dewey referred to Nelson's testimony to the Senate War Investigating committee, given last week but made public only yesterday.

Deputy referred to Nelson's testimony to the Senate War Investigating committee, given last week but made public only yesterday.

The new row developed at a time when some in Washington were questioning whether Nelson would continue as WPB chairman after he returns from China. Asked about that at his forenoon news conference, president Roosevelt said he did not know.

Meanwhile, WPB sources said that 37-year-old J. A. Krug, who took over as acting chairman as Nelson departed this morning for Chungking, had received a blank check of authority to run the war agency and set it operating with maximum efficiency.

Krug in Saddle

Assigned to the task by Mr. Roosevelt when Charles E. Wilson resigned yesterday as executive vice chairman, Krug was reported to have made it clear to top WPB officials that he expects an immediate end of rumor-mongering and policy disputes within the war agency. He was said to have promised to fire anyone who engages in future internal brawls.

The president, at his news conference, said Nelson was still chairman of WPB. But he added, in response to a question, that he could not say now whether the war production chief would return to the same job. Questions about what is going to happen in the future are of an "iffy" nature, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Krug, who went to work in a modest side-corridor office at WPB, did not answer directly a question from newsmen as to whether his assignment to run the war agency would be permanent.

The president, he said, was "much better qualified" to answer that.

Wilson Scores Officials

Wilson, in resigning, asserted that subordinate officials of Nelson's personal staff had inspired stories that he was opposed to any reconversion at this time. And, in accepting Wilson's resignation, Mr. Roosevelt said he had "been aware of some dissension" within WPB.

Gen. von Kluge Reported Killed

STOCKHOLM, Saturday, Aug. 26. (P)—Field Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge has been killed, the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today on the basis of information received from Germany.

Circumstances of his reported death were not known here and the newspaper had no additional details. (There was no immediate confirmation of this report in either Axis or Allied official quarters.)

Von Kluge, 61-years-old, had held command of the German armies on the western front since July 6, when he succeeded Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolf von Rundstedt.

War Department Bans Broadcast Of Socialist Addresses to Troops

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25. (P)—The War department withdrew tonight its previous agreement to give the Socialist party an opportunity to broadcast a political address to troops overseas.

The Socialist party had contended that President Roosevelt's speech at Bremerton, Wash., Aug. 22 was a political address and had asked equal radio time for a similar broadcast.

This morning the War department announced this request would be granted but tonight acting Secretary of War John J. McCloy said this decision had been overruled.

Famous Riviera Resort Town in Hands of Yanks

By GEORGE TUCKER

ROME, Aug. 25. (P)—American troops, lunging suddenly eastward from their Riviera beachhead in Southern France, have captured the famous resort towns of Cannes and Antibes and tonight were fighting forward less than twenty miles from the Italian frontier.

Nice, within short artillery range of the advancing Yank forces, was expected to fall at any hour.

Other swift Allied columns drove methodically toward the heart of France and a junction with Gen. Eisenhower's victorious forces in the north. Tonight's headquarters communique said forces probing into the delta of the great Rhone valley were close to Arles and Tarascon, river towns only a few miles apart.

Germans in Retreat

(A German high command communique indicated that a general enemy retreat was in progress up the Rhone valley toward Lyon, which had been reported in the hands of French Patriot forces.)

Bitter fighting still raged in the naval base of Toulon, where French troops drew their ring of steel tighter about a stubbornly-resisting Nazi garrison. A heavy Allied attack had been launched to wipe out the last four pockets of Germans in Marseille. Two German generals and 5,000 prisoners had been captured in the Marseille area in the past seventy-two hours.

American units driving westward from Salon, northwest of Marseille, were reported within less than eight miles of the city of Arles on the Rhone river. Another Yank column pounding along the Durance valley was approaching Avignon, on the Rhone north of Arles.

Swiss Reports Unconfirmed

Still officially unconfirmed was the report from Switzerland that advanced American units had reached the Swiss border near Geneva. However, fast armored columns habitually work far in advance of the main body of Allied troops and it was entirely possible that mechanized cavalry and combat engineers were at the frontier.

Hand-to-hand fighting went on in the streets of Toulon as the fanatical Nazis refused to surrender. Similar street fighting raged in some parts of Marseille, but on a reduced scale. A dispatch from Sid Feder, Associated Press war correspondent, said the French began a final concerted attack on remaining strongpoints today after laying down a heavy artillery barrage on a commanding hill in the southwest section of Marseille.

Japs To Allow Relief Money for Prisoners

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25. (P)—The Japanese government has agreed to allow about $10 a month relief money to be sent to each American prisoner of war in the Philippines, the State department announced today.

Tokyo's agreement, received through the Swiss government, which will relay the funds from this country, came after negotiations began early in 1942.

Laval and Petain Plan To Set Up New Government

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

DELLE, FRANCE, OUTSIDE MORVILLARS, Aug. 24. (Delayed). (P)—Pierre Laval, with Marshal Petain still at his side is working desperately at Morvillars to "build a case" for himself and it is expected some sort of new French Collaborationist government will be announced shortly—if there is yet time.

Despite many conflicting reports about the whereabouts of the two Vichy leaders, including stories they had been removed to Germany, a reliable informant said both still are in France at Morvillars.

Laval and Petain each has a luxurious chateau at his disposal in Morvillars and were there at 10 p. m. tonight.

My informant himself saw Laval and his information concerning Petain was well founded.

Laval has complete freedom, but has been circulating the story through friends that he is a prisoner. The informant said.

When he left Paris Laval was accompanied by Otto Abetz, German ambassador; Joseph Darnand, chief of the Vichy militia; Marcel Deat, minister of state; several Gestapo agents; and others.

Bordeaux Freed, New Report Says

IRUN, Spain, Aug. 25. (P)—Information reaching this border town today from the FFI said Bordeaux, France's fourth largest city, had been liberated.

(Capture of Bordeaux by French and American forces also was reported Thursday by the French radio at Algiers, but no confirmation has yet come from official sources.)

The mayor of Bordeaux, Adrian Marquet, deputy minister of the interior in Pierre Laval's Vichy government in 1940, was arrested within an hour after the port was taken, according to the French Patriot authorities.

The French said they expected American troops to reach the Spanish-French frontier at Hendaye across the border from Irun, sometime today.

Allied technicians were declared already hard at work repairing the port installations of St. John De Luz, Bayonne on the Atlantic, and Port Vendres on the Mediterranean, which were wrecked by the Germans before departure.

A number of bloody engagements were said to have taken place at Bordeaux. However there was no estimate of the casualties.

Hull and Dulles Agree in Part On Peace Plans

By FLORA LEWIS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25. (P)—Secretary Hull and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's foreign affairs adviser, John Foster Dulles, announced agreement today "on numerous aspects" of the proposed world peace agency, but Dulles pointedly reserved Republican rights to discuss the subject in the forthcoming campaign.

Completing a series of three talks, Hull and Dulles issued an extraordinary election-year pronouncement saying they both felt the subject is a non-Partisan one. In stipulating that the agreement does not "preclude full public non-Partisan discussion of the means of attaining a lasting peace," Dulles explained that he wanted to leave no loophole for a charge of bad faith when Dewey talks on the subject.

Predicts Political Talks

Furthermore, Dulles told reporters before leaving for New York where he will see Dewey, that there will be "plenty of political discussion on many other aspects of foreign affairs, especially in regard to past conduct of foreign policy."

The joint Hull-Dulles announcement said the two agreed on "numerous aspects" of problems involved in an international security organization.

The two will meet again, the statement said, to continue exchanging views and keep Dewey up to date on the progress of the American-British-Russian postwar security talks at Dumbarton Oaks.

Seeks "American Plan"

Dulles said he hoped that the talks would produce an "American plan" rather than an administration plan for world peace.

At Dumbarton Oaks, the conferees adjourned for the weekend, a communique stated, while the secretariat prepares material for discussion next week.

"The general views of the three groups have been clarified in the initial presentations," it was announced.

Earlier, Secretary of State Hull gave a committee of seven Republican and Democratic senators a resume of the conversations thus far. One Democrat said he thought progress was being made toward a bi-partisan understanding on post-war policy.

Dulles apparently shared this view and said he thought weight would be given Governor Dewey's foreign policy ideas during the three-power deliberations.

Designed to burn out strongpoints of the Atlantic wall and save infantry lives, the "crocodile" uses a special new type of fuel. Its flames can be spotted off a nearby surface in the manner of a billboard shot, to burn out pillboxes and trenches hundreds of feet away.

The flaming gun is mounted on a standard Churchill tank, with the fuel carried in an armored trailer behind. The flame equipment can be jettisoned in case of need and the tank can operate thereafter as an orthodox Churchill, with no cut in firepower.

The announcement said the British first used flamethrowers to put a coastal battery out of action in the Dieppe and have been working on their development ever since.

23-Mile Advance Gives Troyes to Patton's Forces

Scenes of First World War Reached

By JAMES M. LONG

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Saturday, Aug. 26. (P)—American tanks in a twenty-three-mile advance yesterday rolled into Troyes, eighty-five miles southeast of Paris and 163 miles from the German border at the Rhine, while far behind them Allied armies were stamping out the last sparks of German resistance south of the Seine.

At Troyes, they also are thirty-seven miles south of the Marne, scene of many a bloody battle in the first war, and fifty miles west of Chaumont, Gen. John J. Pershing's headquarters in that war.

There were signs that even more momentous fighting was impending on the plains north of Paris, with the Germans possibly falling back to a battle line along the Somme river, another scene of heavy engagements in the First World War.

Leaving Rocket Coast

At least part of their forces were pulling out of the rocket coast fortifications, pilots reported, probably before the menace of the American bridgehead thirty miles northwest of Paris which the Germans have failed to wipe out despite the heaviest fighting.

Fighters and fighter-bombers in clearing weather struck hammer blows at these forces along and beyond the Seine, destroying or damaging 105 tanks and 156 other vehicles.

They shot down forty-one enemy planes trying to protect these movements, probably got six more, damaged twenty-one others and lost eighteen of their own number.

Allied ground forces, closing in on the German positions, have pushed far south of the Seine, cracked the final enemy line before the river and closed in from every direction.

Americans Crack Resistance

Americans broke the back of stubborn German resistance and seized Elbeuf, twenty-five miles from the mouth of the Seine, whose capture was erroneously announced Thursday.

They then branched out six miles to the west and linked up with Canadian forces pressing in from the west. French civilians said the Germans in the pocket were so short of transport they had commandeered everything with four wheels or four legs.

As the second World War swept back toward the trudging battlefields of the First World War, supreme headquarters lifted its recent mantle of secrecy to disclose that the Americans were on or across the Seine most of the 175 miles from Elbeuf to Troyes.

Approach Belgian Border

Both at Troyes and in the still secret fan-out north of Mantua, the Americans were barely a hundred miles from the Belgian border and the German's stolen provinces of Alsace-Lorraine.

Between these forces and the Allied armies on the Seine, the Germans were under the sights of wide-ranging warplanes which gave their moving columns no rest from the Seine north to the Somme.

WHEN HOLLYWOOD SHAKES A LEG, IT'S COLOSSAL!

By ROBERT THOMAS
AP Features

HOLLYWOOD—"I wouldn't say it was crowded at the Palladium last night," broadcasts Bob Hope, "but I didn't know until the place closed that I was dancing all night with a male WAC."

Such glamorous advertising is heartwarming to the operators of the Hollywood dance spot, which is sandwiched between CBS and NBC studios on Sunset Boulevard and gets plenty of it. These mentionings help to spread the Palladium name, which already has considerable mileage.

Its managers claim the place gets laudatory letters from thousands of servicemen all over the globe every month. One was particularly touching. It was from a sailor in the south Pacific who said he spent

New Year's Eve down there dreaming of the Palladium.

When the seaman came to town the following year, the management magnificently tendered him tickets for the best dinner table in the house on Dec. 31, any night spot's biggest evening of the year. A few days later, he sent them a fine letter of thanks and invited his benefactors to stay at his family's 35,000-acre ranch in northern California.

"The guy needed free tickets to the Palladium like he needed a hole in the head," remarks E. F. Vollmer, one of the executives.

Meca for 6,000,000.

Since the place made its debut more than three years ago, over 5,000,000 people have shuffled across its immense, polished floor, spending an average of $1.40 apiece, including the seventy-five cent admission. This gold mine is the baby of Maury Cohen, onetime movie producer, who manages it for the backers, a group of film executives.

Cohen's contention was that too many dance hall operators had made a honkytonk of a recreation which everyone should share. He was determined to open a place which would, in an axiom, "Give people a good time under nice auspices at popular prices."

This "nice auspices" angle is something that the management has constantly stressed. The place is policed by twenty-four gentlemanly attendants, as well as SPs and MP's, who see that the Palladium's standards of behavior are strictly adhered to. These include:

1. There is no tossing of one's partner over one's shoulder—only conventional dance steps are allowed.

2. Men must wear business suits; cuffs must be twenty inches or more, coats not longer than fingertip length. Girls cannot sport bobby socks or slacks. Servicemen must be in regulation uniform.

3. Bartenders will not serve drinks to anyone visibly intoxicated.

4. Girls cannot dance together.

Such measures help the Pally to attract people from 18 minimum (legal age) to 75. The hoi polloi favor the point and so do some of Hollywood's most famous people, such as Betty Grable, Alice Faye, Dorothy Lamour, Barbara Stanwyck, Edgar Bergen and even Monty Woolley.

Big Name Bands
The Pally hires only the biggest name bands and so far none has flopped. The only exception to the name band rule was Stan Kenton, who played his first big-time engagement there. The lad has done all right since.

The bands have free rein and the hot or sweetness of their selections is determined by sensing the crowd. Usually the trend is toward the livelier numbers and the warmer of the commercial outfits—the Dorseys, Goodman, James — are the biggest draws.

About eighty per cent of the material used for construction in the United States is lumber.

Much of the talk you hear in these war days is not so broad as it is long.

JAMMED SESSION—There's usually a full house when the Hollywood Palladium goes on the swing shift.

New York Sheriffs and Juvenile Delinquency

THE WISDOM AND FORESIGHT long since manifested locally by the organization and functioning of a co-ordinating council of social agencies finds corroboration in a recommendation just made by the state sheriffs' association of New York state.

Reporting an increase of twenty-seven per cent in cases of juvenile delinquency in 1943 as compared with the preceding year, the association declared that the problem extends beyond the jurisdiction of any single officer or agency and described it as a community matter. It recommended the formation of co-ordinating councils of interested public and private agencies in each community.

The committee declared that too much stress was put on physical factors as causes of delinquency and not enough on "the more fundamental factors of inadequate moral training and discipline." "We sincerely recommend," it added, "that parents place less dependency on educational fol-de-rol and more upon the common sense principles epitomized by the old-fashioned woodshed; less reliance upon the vagaries of pseudo-science and more upon the teachings of God."

That law enforcement agents and agencies have their hands full these days, in the matter of juvenile delinquency, is well known even if it were not emphasized by the sheriff's report. But when the sheriffs cast aspersions upon education they are venturing outside their legitimate sphere of operations. And their recommendation to resort to spankings is not a particularly engaging topic for summer debate. Although one may be disposed to feel with the New York state sheriffs that desperate situations require the application of desperate remedies, one might well consider this more important principle in relation to corporal punishment: Spankings will register effectively only in proportion to the degree of respect entertained by the recipient for the administrator.

The Biggest Store In World History

WHEN Uncle Sam opens his surplus commodities store soon after the war he will have merchandise on his shelves valued at more than $100,000,000, it is estimated. It will include practically everything from guns to giraffes, from PT boats to penicillin. Included will be typewriters and candy bars, shoes and airplanes, houses and power plants, blankets, trucks, tools, dehydrated foods, farm lands. In fact, it is almost impossible to think of any commodity that will not be included in the long list.

Members of Congress say orderly and profitable disposal of these huge stores will be a tremendous task. Through on the market overnight a quantity of merchandise so huge would naturally disrupt values and result in a lowering of prices which would prove demoralizing to the postwar economy. Congress appears to be determined that the goods shall fall into the hands of civilians, rather than those of speculators.

There is little doubt that the government will realize only a small fraction of the original cost. One member of the Surplus Commodities committee of the House fixes the amount at ten per cent or less. He points out that there will be few buyers for anti-aircraft guns which cost $75,000. Many articles valuable for war purposes will be useless in peacetime.

The Controversy Over Television

THE RADIO INDUSTRY seems to have got itself into a nice battle over the proper time to begin the general sale of television receiving sets. One faction contends that receivers should be offered for sale as soon as material and labor are available to produce them in the quantities which the public will demand as the result of expectations generated by glowing promises of television enjoyment.

On the other side of the controversy are ranged some radio industry leaders who believe that improvements in television receivers will be so great in the months immediately following the war that the sale of receivers should be delayed until the improvements become standard.

They believe that sets sold immediately after the war will soon become obsolete and disappoint their owners, resulting in the smothering of most of the public interest aroused by forecasts of cheap and perfect television reception. They are right in their argument that television receiving sets should not be sold where broadcasts are not available.

Superficially, the question is confined to a matter of business judgment in the launching of what may become an important major industry. But beneath the surface is a problem in personal rights. The American is not only an enthusiastic booster for progress, but he likes to have a part in it. When something new and better is known to exist, he wants to buy it and see how it works and perhaps achieve some small distinction in his community as a patron of progress.

If the nation's American industrial advancement had to depend upon their own resources to pursue every experiment to its utmost possibilities of perfection before seeking a market, the country would still be living in an ox-team economy. But these pioneers knew when a market existed, and they sought it. With the profits of their business, they discovered and copied improvements. Thus a producer-consumer partnership in progress was created with mutually satisfactory results.

This plan has the virtue of such proved success as was demonstrated when American industry went to war.

Border Crossing Likely The Deciding Factor

WITH Allied armies closing in on Germany from three directions, speculation increases concerning the length of time the Nazis will be able to hold out before being forced by overwhelming odds to seek peace.

There is every indication Allied commanders are trying for an immediate knockout punch. Some predict the end for Hitler as early as September. Others fix the date as October or November. Few persons think he will be able to last through the winter.

One phase of the situation which is rarely mentioned, but which may have an important bearing upon Hitler's fortunes of war, concerns what action the German people will take when Allied armies are moving across the borders of their homeland in force. Germans have never been forced to fight on their own soil and have always been represented as having little stomach for it. Having been told repeatedly invading armies will be armed with vengeance, they may feel greater safety lies in immediate surrender, and demand an end to further resistance.

During all the long years of the war Hitler has had the support of the German people. It has been their will to continue which has sustained him in recent months when reverses were piling up on all fronts. Hitler has made much of the apparent defection of his generals, and has weathered their attempts to remove him.

But the Fuehrer will not be able to go on when the German people decide they have had enough of war and demand peace rather than see their homeland overrun by Allied armies. Such a demand, if widespread throughout Germany, would bring the end of the war in Europe and the occupation of Germany by Allied armies without resistance.

Shush, Shush Warnings Apparently Overlooked

URGENT WARNINGS that some of the undercover New Deal aims should not be stressed now do not seem to have reached the ears of some of the New Dealers who are running for office in the states.

West Virginia is giving an example. In ardent defense of anything and everything that the New Deal does, Edgar B. Sims, the state auditor, who, with twenty-six years of attachment to the public pay rolls, wants the voters to retain him for another four years, has come out in high praise for the New Deal's effort to "take over" all insurance in this country and put it into the hands of Roosevelt bureaucrats.

But Sweeney Fleming, Republican nominee for auditor, thinks that the states ought to do the job of regulating—and taxing—the insurance companies; and he has the weight of most of the members of Congress, the three best members of the federal supreme court and the general public on his side.

But it probably won't be long until Sims gets a soft-pedal signal from Washington on that one.

In his campaign of liquidation, Hitler may eventually get around to those who told him U-boats would win the war and France could never be invaded.

Much was expected of Turkey when it broke with the Axis. To date its only move has been to get a chair ready to be pulled up to the peace table.

The Japanese, having failed utterly to save face, are now wondering if it is possible for them to save race.

I Had My Choice

By MARSHALL MASLIN

A little devil popped up before me and shrieked: "Think fast! I'll count ten and grant any wish—ANY wish—you can think of before I'm finished counting. What'll you have?"

He began counting: "One—two—" I thought, "How nice it would be to have a million dollars!" With that much money I could go places and see things after the war. I wouldn't have to work if I didn't feel like it. And then I thought that the few rich men I know aren't so very happy. They feel insecure and some of them are restless and suspicious. None of them does as he pleases. Perhaps I'd better wish for something else.

The little devil was still counting: "Three—four—five—six—"

Why not wish for happiness—happiness all the time, no matter what happened? Sometimes far out of the city you meet a man with very little, as the world measures possession, and he is happy and serene. It would be nice to be like that, but if you're happy all the time, there's not much variety in your life. Ups and downs are exciting. After a toothache, you feel better. Happiness isn't everything, after all, and how could I be heartlessly happy when my friends are unhappy?

And still the little devil was counting: "Seven—eight—nine—" Well, how about wisdom? How about knowing everything there was to be known? How about knowing all the mysteries of life and death, and what's before birth and what comes after the last breath? How about that? But half the fun of life is its uncertainty and knowing everything would flatten existence for me or any other man. No infallible wisdom wouldn't be any fun. But what WOULD be, then?

The little devil stopped counting just as his tongue touched ten and he gave me a mocking look and said: "Well, how about wisdom? How about knowing everything there was to be known? How about knowing all the mysteries of life and death, and what's before birth and what comes after the last breath? How about that? But half the fun of life is its uncertainty and knowing everything would flatten existence for me or any other man. No infallible wisdom wouldn't be any fun. But what WOULD be, then?"

THE MAN WHO DIDN'T WANT TO FIGHT ON MORE THAN ONE FRONT

Plot by Group of New Deal Socialists Is Declared Responsible for Upset of WPB

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, August 25—Intrigue—that festering sore which has eaten like a cancer into the Roosevelt administration for several years—has finally upset the top men in the War Production Board at a critical moment in the nation's history.

President Roosevelt, floundering in a sea of rumors and political pressures, unable to make up his mind to clean house in the top floor of the War Production Board and put it on an efficient basis, accepted the resignation of Charles E. Wilson after the latter had pointedly referred to the dissension inside the board.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt intends to do anything now about the intrigue is not known but certainly he appears to have sided with the intriguers. What it all boils down to is the fact that certain New Dealers who have socialistic ideas about using the surplus property on a "production for use" basis in competition with industry are finally in control of policy in the War Production Board. They have schemed for months to weaken Donald Nelson and to get rid of Charles E. Wilson. They have the ear of the White House or somebody in the president's entourage who has in turn the ear of the president.

Congressmen Amazed
Members of Congress are frankly amazed at the developments and, in talking among themselves, say

BAGGED 160 NAZIS

FIGHTING CAPTOR of 160 Germans in the Battle of the Gap, in Normandy, was Pvt. Earl McAllister (above), of the Canadian army. Dispatches tell that he rounded up his captives in batches while hunting alone in a captured German car. His record beats that of United States Sergeant Alvin York, whose one-man bag was 132 Germans in World War I.

that for some time they have been trying to get at the bottom of the situation but have not been able even in executive sessions to get at the facts.

It turns out now that the plot to get Donald Nelson out of town was hatched by some of the ardent New Dealers themselves and that their hope was to get rid of Charles E. Wilson by aggravating him into a resignation while Donald Nelson was away in China. This would mean the elevation of some New Dealer whom the cabal wanted to put in power in the War Production Board.

The foregoing version of what has just happened is one that is current among well-informed senators on Capitol Hill, where there is a certain sympathy with both Donald Nelson and Charles E. Wilson though there is an inclination to criticize Mr. Nelson for not getting rid of the intriguers long ago.

This correspondent called attention to the same kind of intrigue when Ferdinand Eberstadt was summarily removed last year as vice chairman by Donald Nelson. The government lost the service then of one of the ablest young men in the country. It was made to appear that the friction was between Mr. Wilson and Mr. Eberstadt when, as a matter of fact, the effort was to get rid of one executive from the business world and then concentrate on the other.

Just what purpose is behind all the intrigue is not clear except that various New Dealers have not been content to stand idly by while such huge properties as have been established in the various war plants are available. A controversy has been manufactured, for instance, on the subject of reconversion and many members of Congress have been enlisted in a sort of drive against Mr. Wilson on the theory that he would favor a slow reconversion in which small businesses would be denied an opportunity to get some of the plants in the surplus property pool.

It is understood that a considerable amount of pressure on the White House was exerted by stimulating telegrams and letters from small businessmen throughout the country, who were told that Mr. Wilson was inimical to their interests. As a matter of fact, the latter was endeavoring to carry out what he thought was the desire of the army and navy to prevent a disintegration of the war effort through too sudden a conversion.

Group Picks Successor

The success of the little group whom Mr. Wilson charges with provoking dissension and which group Mr. Nelson refused to dislodge—possibly because he was afraid of them himself—seems to be assured. They have already picked out as Mr. Wilson's successor a staunch New Dealer, namely, Julius A. Krug, who was the chief power engineer for the Tennessee Valley Authority and has been director general of priorities and vice chairman in charge of WPB's program division for the last two years. Mr. Krug is one of the Wisconsin group who believed strongly in the TVA idea. Private utility executives, however, speak highly of his integrity. They think that he is the type of man who, while possessed of a certain radical philosophy, does not endeavor to achieve its execution by unfair means.

The army and navy had complete confidence in Mr. Eberstadt and later told the same way about Charles E. Wilson. They are represented as feeling now that Mr. Krug can be depended upon to take care of the army and navy viewpoint in the War Production Board.

prodigality, is part of what makes for quick success. From the point of view of quick success, the best way to end the war before the snow flies, is to have on hand as much material as would fight it on until spring. A large quantity of excess material on the side of the winner is an accompaniment of every successful war.

Not All Told

Something like the present talk about excess supplies arose just after the end of the last war. There was an investigation by a congressional committee. The committee, in a critical spirit, put on the stand Gen. Charles G. Dawes, who had had charge of supplies. Gen. Dawes ended some days of testimony, settled questions, pleased the country, and won fame for himself, with an exotic phrase which became part of America's common talk: "Hell and Maria, we won the war, didn't we?"

As between the WPB point of view and the army one, the public tends to sympathize with WPB, for everybody wants to get back to making civilian goods, and consuming them. The same idea tends to influence Congress and everybody who has a political point of view. This condition has gone so far as to cause serious concern among the army heads. Only serious concern would have led Gen. Clay to tell a Senate committee what he did this week. At that, he did not tell all publicly, but the enemy learn some of our deficiencies.

Dark Shadow Is Seen Cast by Car Strike Question

By SAMUEL B. PETTINGILL

The Philadelphia strike may be looked upon as a flare-up of an ugly issue which honest citizens, white and black, deeply deplore. But it involved a fundamental question that should concern every worker in America, regardless of color. That is whether FEPC, or any bureau not established by Congress and not responsible to the people shall be permitted to set aside long-standing contracts, and then call out the army to enforce its decrees against civilians by penalties more severe than most criminals get, but with no right of appeal to any court in the land.

The Fair Employment Practice Committee ordered the up-grading of eight negroes to motormen's positions. Let me express my belief that in time of war the men should have deferred the legal question until the war's end, and should have stayed on the job. Nevertheless, on the basic question of government by law or government by bayonets, the strikers' side of the story has not been fairly told.

By Executive Order

Here are the facts as Senator Russell, of Georgia, detailed them to the Senate on August 8. FEPC was created by executive order, not by act of Congress. Senator Russell contends that its authority is limited to concerns with which the United States holds war contracts. The Philadelphia transportation company is not under government contract.

In another case FEPC had said "the Santa Fe Railroad has no defense contract with the United States government and is, therefore, outside the jurisdiction of this committee." At Philadelphia the company and the union had a contract, entered into long before and in good faith, governing employment practices which protected seniority, etc.

Reversing the position taken in the Santa Fe case, FEPC set aside the contract and issued the order which resulted in 6,000 men striking, tens of thousands of war workers left without transportation, and thousands of soldiers ordered to shoot Americans who might stand on what they honestly believed were their lawful rights under the constitution of their country.

As long ago as last January, the men wrote that they could not comply with the order because it was in violation of their contract. The right to go to court was denied them. They sent a committee to Washington to present the case to Congress, supported by the signatures of 3,800 workers.

Remedies Exhausted

Only after exhausting every peaceable remedy did they strike. The army marched in. The men were told that they would be indicted into the army, that they would be denied gasoline, food and shoe rations; that they would be barred from employment in any other essential industry for the duration. Possible employers were told that if they hired any of the workers, their own war contracts would be cancelled. No trial by jury; no trial at all. No appeal to any court; bureaucratic orders backed by guns!

The strike, once started, had to be broken; and as FEPC refused to rescind its order, the army had to do the dirty work. No reflection on the army is intended. But the underlying question, whether FEPC had the lawful authority to set in motion this tragic sequence, is important to every worker. The "commander-in-chief" doctrine, applied to either Philadelphia workers or Montgomery Ward employees, casts the dark shadow of totalitarian government across America.

Administration of Manpower Act Is Approved by Most Voters

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

The vote today is:

For 51%
Against 37%
No Opinion 12%

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 25—While the American public was critical of the new manpower regulations at the time they were adopted July 1, favorable public opinion has developed since the rulings went into effect.

By government order, no employer can hire men without their first having consulted the United States Employment Service.

In June, before this order took effect, an Institute survey found that a small majority of voters polled—fifty-three per cent—disapproved the proposed regulation, largely because they feared it was an attempt on the part of Washington to over-regulate people's lives.

Today such fears, although still present to some extent, have greatly diminished. Newspapers and radio news services have carried many stories about the plan and its administration. Thousands of employees have visited the offices of the United States Employment Service and have had the ruling explained to them. As a result, a new nationwide survey by the Institute shows that the number who disapprove of the ruling has decreased from fifty-three per cent in June, to thirty-seven per cent today.

In conducting its survey the Institute first asked voters: "Have you heard or read about the new ruling which requires men to get permission from the United States Employment Service before taking a new job in a business firm or factory?" Approximately seven voters in every ten said they had heard of the ruling.

These people were then asked: "Will you tell me whether you are for or against this ruling?"

Paul L. Mudge Is Honored Here at Dance and Banquet

Boatswain's Mate Second Class Paul L. Mudge was honor guest of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reynolds at a dance and banquet Thursday evening at the Veterans of Foreign War home.

Mudge, the son of the host and hostess, will leave Wednesday for Treasure Island, Calif., to be assigned to a heavy cruiser, after spending a thirty-day rehabilitation leave here. He recently returned from convoy duty in the South Pacific and Caribbean areas.

Barley's orchestra played for the dance which opened with a grand march led by Mudge and his sister, Mrs. Lillian Zimmerman, and was interspersed by an entertainment program. Mrs. Alice Miller gave a reading entitled, "Hitler's Last Will"; Powhatan J. Snelling played four piano solos, "Anchor Aweigh," "Marine," "Caissons Go Rolling Along," and "Here Comes the Navy"; and James Stemple imitated a Bob Hawk radio quiz, calling on Thomas Whalley and Mudge for answers to humorous questions.

The patriotic motif was also carried out in the decorations of the banquet table and the huge two-tiered cake which decorated the table in front of the honor guests. Dark blue streamers extended the length of the white cloth and a large bouquet of red, white and blue flowers and blue candles centered the table. The cake, with white icing was decorated with the letters USN in blue and topped with a miniature ship sailing the American flag.

Whalley served as toastmaster and called upon Mudge and Mrs. Zimmerman, and James Stemple, in behalf of the guests, he also presented the honor guest with a gift of $20. Fifty persons attended.

Short Covering and Investment Buying Help Stocks to Recovery

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP)—Short covering and a little investment nibbling helped scattered stocks regain their balance in the tail-end of today's market although many leaders remained in the stumbling division.

It was one of the slowest sessions for the past three months as most customers prepared for the lengthy weekend—principal securities exchanges will recess tomorrow and Sept. 2 as they did last Saturday—by either standing aside, trimming commitments or purchasing sparsely.

Handicapping bullish contingents, however, was the persistent belief transition difficulties would confront industry if the Nazis collapse suddenly, which was deemed possible in view of the rapid sweep of the Allies in Europe. The War Production Board row, with its threat to reconversion planning, also was a handicap.

Improved were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Philip Morris, Twentieth Century-Fox and Johns-Manville. Losers included General Motors, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Standard Oil (N.J.), Consolidated Edison, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, General Electric, Kennecott and American Smelting.

Bond prices showed generally narrow and irregular variations today with stock exchange dealings of $5,568,200 face value compared with $6,904,000 in the previous session.

Bids for U. S. governments held prices about even with previous closings.

"A girl's best friend is her Doctor!"
"Didn't he tell Mother I need orange juice every day!"
Doctor knows that orange juice is nature's surest source of vitamin C... the vitamin youngsters need for sound bones and teeth; to help resist infection; to make cuts and bruises heal faster. It is served to infants diluted, increasing to 3 or 4 ounces of straight juice by one year, and 6 to 8 ounces by six years.
Grownups, too, need vitamin C to fight fatigue and keep feeling young. One 6 to 8 ounce glass of juice at breakfast meets the day's quota, and helps with vitamins A, B₁, B₂, (G), calcium and other minerals. Also serve oranges in tempting salads and desserts, for between-meal snacks and lunch-box meals.
Small sizes best buy! Don't miss this big health value! The smaller oranges are most plentiful. Ideal for healthful juice. Buy at least two dozen.

Romania Declares War on Germany; Seize Bucharest

By WADE WERNER

LONDON, Aug. 25 (P)—Romania declared war on Germany today after Nazi bombers raided Bucharest, the capital, and radio reports said German ground troops within Bucharest had been swiftly overwhelmed by King Mihail's regiments.

The declaration of war against Germany by her former satellite was announced in a proclamation by King Mihail's new government which was broadcast from Bucharest.

Romanians in Control
It said the Romanians had gained complete control of the capital from the Germans, whose whole Balkan edifice was fast collapsing.

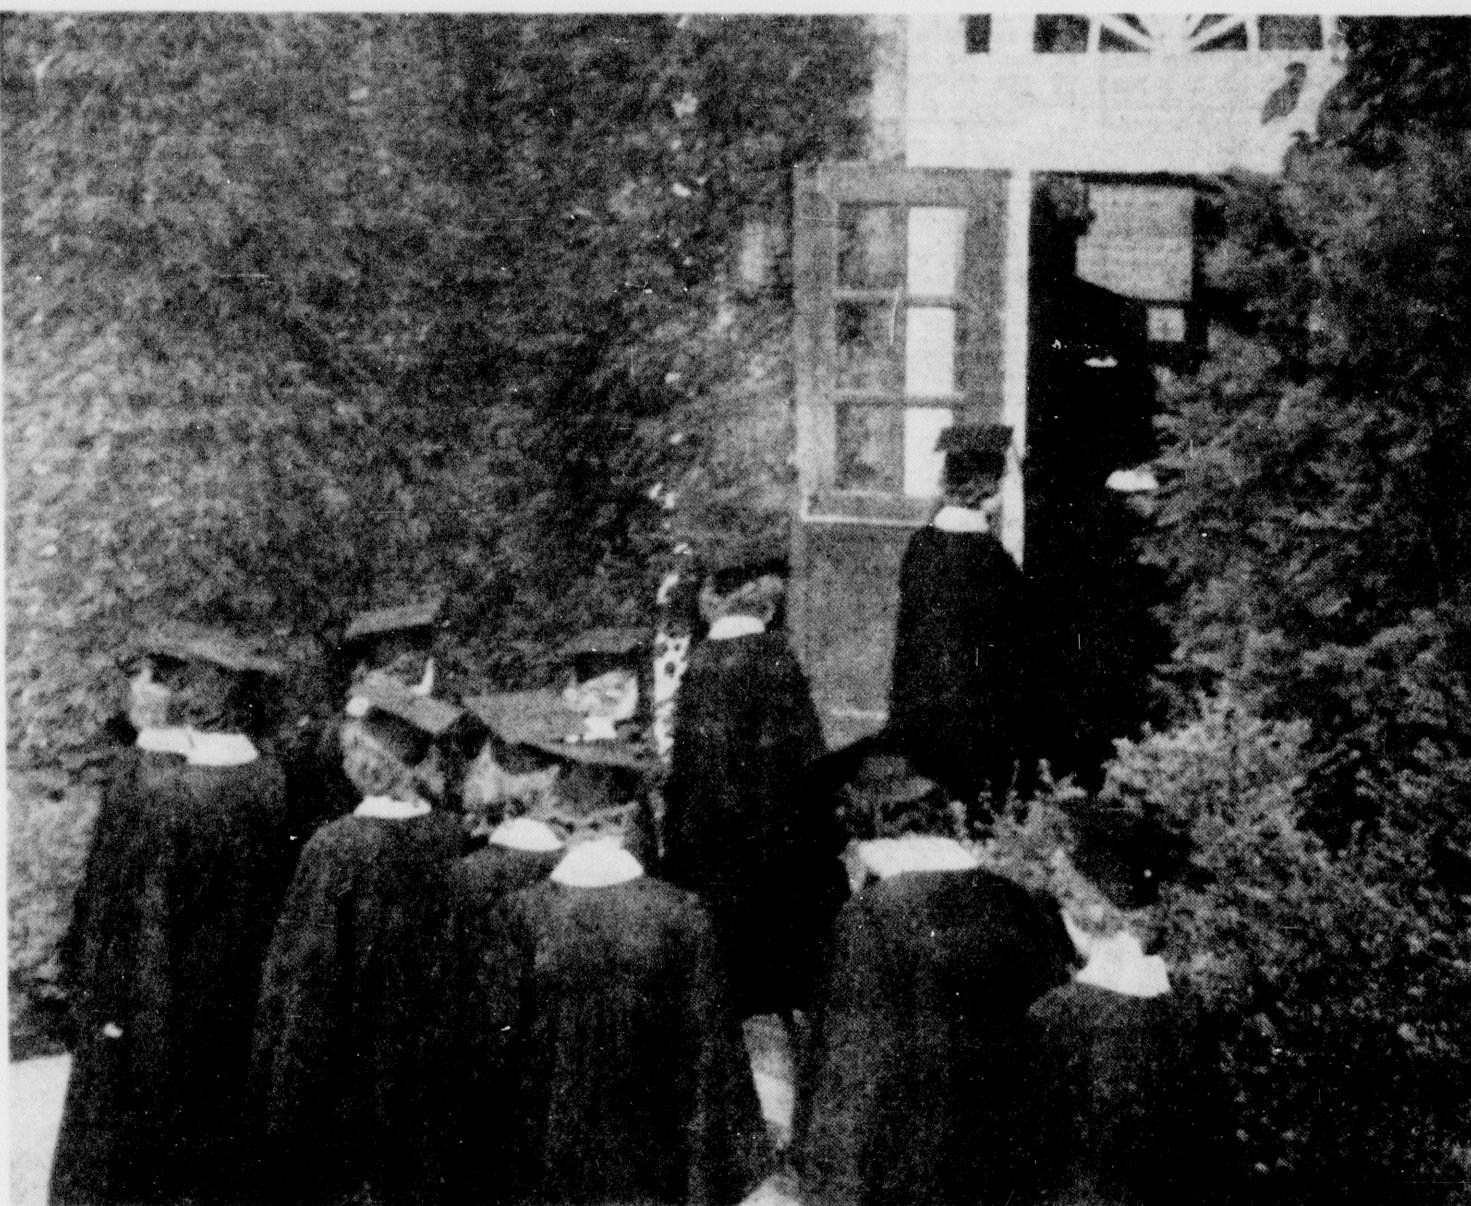

The Bucharest radio said the Germans tried to capture the Banasa airport near Bucharest, but were thrown back by the royal Romanian guards regiments and that roads from there to the capital were littered with German guns and vehicles.

The new government, which is trying to swing the country effectively to the side of the Allies, again called upon Romanians to "rise and fight the Germans."

Place Blame on Germans
The war proclamation said Romania gave the Germans an opportunity to withdraw without interference but, "after assurances as solemn as they were perfidious," German units attacked Romanian units and "even machinegunned the peaceful population of villages and the capital."

It said the German air force "in strength bombed the capital and other towns x x x aiming particularly at the royal palace" and "by these acts of aggression which occurred simultaneously in various parts of the country has placed her in a state of war with Romania."

Juliu Maniu, leader of the Peasant party who joined the new government a few days ago, said in a broadcast statement that Romania had sacrificed more than 600,000 men to German interests.

Fifty-four Students Receive Diplomas at State Teachers College

Teachers today have unlimited opportunities to serve the communities in which they work, Dr. W. W. Trent, state superintendent of schools of West Virginia, said yesterday in an address at the forty-first annual commencement exercises of Frostburg State Teachers college. Forty-four graduates received their diplomas at the exercises.

One of the most important of these opportunities, Dr. Trent said, is to prevent racial prejudice from spreading in this country, especially when the war ends and we are attempting to return to a normal way of life.

"The horizon of race relationships includes all races and all peoples—the white, the negro, the Indian, the Mongolian, the Malay—relationships that must be adjusted if the world is to live in peace after this global war," the speaker declared.

Comparing modern teaching conditions with those of a generation ago, Dr. Trent pointed out that with the equipment now at the disposal of schools and their faculties, teachers have many opportunities for helping children to understand the meaning of facts, not just the facts alone.

The exercises began at 3:30 p. m. with a processionary march and the singing of the national anthem. The Rev. George L. Wehler, pastor of the Salem Evangelical and Reformed church, Frostburg, offered the prayer of invocation, after which the Maryland Singers sang Schubert's "Serenade."

Following Dr. Trent's address and another selection by the singers, President John L. Dunkle conferred the degrees, charging the graduates to keep abreast of the changes which the coming years will bring.

The diplomas were awarded by Tasker G. Lowndes, president of the state board of education, Miss Elizabeth B. Wilson, soloist, sang Haydn's "With Verdure Clad," and after the singing of the college song, the recessional march closed the exercises.

Under the new arrangement bobbins, less than three-quarters full, will be handled in the "shorts" section. The proposal in line with a plan advocated by Local 1874 for several years, union officials said.

Nine residences including the home of the late Thomas Footler, internationally known dyeing and cleaning executive, have been purchased from the Footler estate at a consideration estimated to be in excess of $20,000, Robert T. Powell, 609 Frederick street, local orchardist and realtor, announced yesterday.

Included in the transaction besides the Footler home at 307 Decatur street, are five brick houses and one frame in Potter place and two residences on Davidson street.

Powell said all the properties are to be sold to persons who can be accommodated in the home, hospital officials said last night.

Final trials for con dogs will be held tomorrow afternoon by the Allegheny County Con Hunters' Association on the Hinkle farm at Mt. Savage.

Willkie Prefers To Delay Talk With Roosevelt

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (P)—Wendell Willkie saying that President Roosevelt has invited him to a conference, took the attitude today that he would prefer to wait until after the election.

Nothing definite has been done toward arranging a meeting. Willkie, in New York, confirmed reports of the presidential invitation after Mr. Roosevelt, at his news conference here, said he had been in communication with Willkie.

The disclosures followed several days of rumors that the White House was making overtures to the 1940 C. O. P. presidential nominee for a conference on foreign policy.

Politicians Interested
The reports had attracted more attention from the standpoint of politics than from foreign affairs since Willkie has kept silent on what role, if any, he intends to take in the presidential election campaign.

Willkie left little doubt, however, that he does see the president before the election their talks will be completely divorced from partisan matters.

After Mr. Roosevelt acknowledged in response to questions at his news conference that he had been in private contact with Willkie, the latter told newsmen in New York:

Invited by Roosevelt
"It is true Mr. Roosevelt has written me asking that I confer with him. Naturally I would much prefer that no such conference occur until after the election. But if the president of the United States wishes to see me sooner, I shall of course, comply."

That statement was interpreted here to mean that Willkie, as a citizen, would talk with the president but that he did not want to have a conference with the Democratic candidate for the presidency.

Paris Not Main Objective, Says Kirke L. Simpson

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON Associated Press War Analyst

Graphic eye-witness accounts of the liberation of Paris and of the surrender of the Nazi garrison highlighted the war news from Europe for lay readers, but it was on the Seine, both above and below the city that even grimmer events for shattered German armies were being enacted.

It was there that military developments more potent than Paris regained by its rejoicing people were taking shape even though partially masked by a significant Allied official silence.

Paris Written Off
Paris had been written off for days in the Allied campaign as certain to fall. The psychological effect upon French patriotic uprisings elsewhere in France or upon other Nazi conquered peoples is yet to be fully assessed. Its impact too, upon strictly military factors in the European war equation is yet to be gauged. It could accelerate German defeat at a pace not even the most optimistic military minds have yet considered possible.

Even so, Paris in the cold and grim light of military strategy governing Allied operations in France, still is an incident of the battle, not a major or decisive victory. And it was a decision that American, British and French armies, waging war to the death with German soldiers and Nazi Germany.

Germans Face Death
Down the Seine death or surrender faced another segment of beaten German armies. Junction of a Canadian column with Americans in Louvain appeared to have split in two the pocket west and south of the Seine from which remnants of broken German armies are desperately seeking escape across the river.

What that may mean for the remainder of German forces west of the wide Seine estuary below Rouen has yet to be learned. The final destruction of the Nazi Seventh army and Fifteenth army elements which had been called futilely to its aid is very close.

Allies Near Objective
That is a first-rank Allied objective. There is mounting evidence it is so near complete success in the lower Seine area that the German high command has already abandoned hope of stalling the attack for long on the river.

There is every reason to accept that estimate of the situation as accurate. It bears out German unofficial broadcasts that the general retreat in France is a detachment as the Nazi spokesmen like to say, is under way.

But southeast of Paris up the Seine, the Loire and the Rhone American columns are moving under a tight censorship screen that hints at even greater blows for the foe in the west.

Once the junction of the northern and southern American invasion forces is effected—and it must be near if Lyons has fallen to French patriots—the most decisive battles of the war in the west may take shape on the upper Marne, the Moselle, the Rhine and the Saar, just as they were fought in the First World War.

History seems to be repeating itself in France as Allied troops flow across northern and southern invasion beaches and through seized French ports to deploy for the final phases of the war on Germany.

During the same period this army captured fifty-four tanks, 850 guns, 891 mortars, 3,600 machine guns, 19,150 rifles, 2,730 carts with supplies, and other equipment, including 3,500 horses, forty locomotives, and 1,119 railway cars.

Two Romanian generals were included in the second Ukraine army's prisoner bag.

Cossacks in Action
In Romania the Germans were being cut down by Cossack horsemen, encircled and annihilated by mobile Russian infantrymen, and hounded from the sky in their panicking effort to escape through the Galati gap.

Col. Ernst von Hammer, Berlin radio commentator, complained: "Russian troops scored easy victories because of the attitude of Romanian troops. Those same Romanian divisions which a few days ago fought

Townsend Plan Is Expounded by Herbert F. Haren

Measure Is Only Alternative To Head Off Depression, Speaker Says

Passage by Congress of HR Bill No. 1949, or the Townsend National Recovery Plan, is the only alternative in heading off depression and chaos in this country after the war, Herbert F. Haren, of Chicago, national Townsend organization director, told an audience of 150 persons who gathered last evening in the Fort Cumberland hotel ballroom for the opening session of the three-day joint conference of Maryland and West Virginia clubs.

A three per cent gross tax on all incomes over $100 a month or $1,200 a year would be the method by which the necessary funds would be raised, Haren stated, and added that the turnover would amount to approximately seventeen and a half billion dollars annually.

Both individuals and corporations would be taxed under provision of the plan and there would be no borrowing from the treasury or incurring debts for those unborn, he said.

TO SPEAK HERE—Rep. Andrew C. Schiffer, of the First West Virginia district, will be the guest speaker at the final session of the three-day conference of West Virginia and Maryland Townsend clubs tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the ballroom of the Fort Cumberland hotel. A former prosecuting attorney of Ohio county, he is now serving his second term in the House of Representatives. A native of Wheeling, Schiffer has engaged in law practice there since 1913.

Conservationists Will Hold Meeting In County Soon

Importance of Program Will Be Discussed; Symons To Speak

A meeting of leading farmers and citizens of Allegany county will be held in the near future to discuss the importance of conservation. Ralph F. McHenry, county farm agent, announced yesterday following a meeting of soil conservation officials of this district. The site and date of the meeting have not been determined.

From thirty-five to forty leading citizens of Cumberland as well as other county communities will be invited to the meeting to hear conservationists explain the importance of conservation as it applies not only to agriculture but to industry and people as a whole, McHenry said.

He added that Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service of the University of Maryland and a state committeeman of the Soil Conservation service, will be the principal speaker. A motion picture on conservation also will be shown.

Co-operation Required

Conservation, McHenry pointed out, is a big and important job that requires co-operation for success. The public generally supports the program, he said, but needs a more detailed knowledge of it.

In his opinion, McHenry said, no conservation is so important as soil inasmuch as the civilization of this country is based on ability to live on the land, and he added, the conservation of woodlands and stream control will be discussed at the coming meeting because of their bearing on the protection of soil and the prevention of soil erosion.

Unless conservation is practiced, he continued, the land eventually will reach the point where the fertility and top soil are gone and it will be no good for farming.

Laramy Is Chairman

Allegheny county is better off probably than many other sections of the nation, McHenry said, because the hilly country has required farmers to do some of the things necessary in soil conservation. This includes, he added, such things as strip farming, contour farming, terracing and planting of trees.

The committee named to arrange for the meeting includes Robert S. Laramy, soil technician of the Soil Conservation service, chairman; McHenry, secretary; Charles Harvey, Probstburg, soil supervisor; H. M. Gordon, Flintstone, soil supervisor; W. L. Frazee, Oldtown, soil supervisor; C. U. Dlewellyn, Rawlins, soil supervisor; W. W. Nace, Oakland, soil technician; H. J. Barton, Pinto; W. H. Johnson, Cumberland; James A. Morgan, Probstburg; and Hugh Stevenson, Ellerslie.

Court Will Grant Partial Divorce To Irene Collins

Opinion Cites Testimony To Prove Charge of Husband's Cruelty

Holding that a charge of legal cruelty against William V. Collins, school bus and service station operator, has been fully proved, Chief Judge Walter C. Capper and Associate Judge William A. Huster, in an opinion handed down yesterday in circuit court, said they will grant a partial divorce to his wife, Mrs. Irene E. Collins, although the "court is reluctant to grant" such a divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Collins' cross-bill of complaint, charging Mrs. Collins with cruelty, will be dismissed, according to the opinion, although, it adds, her conduct at times was not above reproach.

The evidence, the opinion declared, shows Collins had little or no respect for the safety and health of his wife, and points out that the culminating attack of cruelty occurred on June 14.

Attack Termed Vicious

This attack the opinion termed "vicious" and related testimony to the effect that Collins on June 14 talked about a settlement, told Mrs. Collins he wanted custody of the children and said he would force her to leave the home.

When she refused to leave, the opinion continued, Collins beat her with his fists and she threw waffle dough in his face. Finally Mrs. Collins started running from the house and her husband threw a clothes pole, about eight feet long, at her, the opinion said, adding that she was struck in the head, was hospitalized for seven days and suffered a lasting scar.

Mrs. Collins, according to the opinion, was left helpless by the side of the road and her husband drove by her without giving her aid. The couple have not lived together since that time, the opinion added.

Examination of the record convinced the court the opinion continued, that Mrs. Collins had become quite nervous and irritable and suspicious of her husband which no doubt brought about frequent quarrels, but the opinion added, Collins, realizing his wife's condition, should have conditioned himself so as not to arouse her suspicions or jeopardize her health by further and cruel treatment.

Wife Gets Custody

Custody of their children, now living with Collins' mother, will be awarded to Mrs. Collins, the opinion stated, and he will be ordered to pay permanent maintenance for their support.

Mrs. Collins previously had filed suit for partial divorce from Collins but after some testimony before the court they became reconciled and returned to their home, living together for a short time before filing of the second suit, the opinion said.
